About Us

The history of New Hogtown Press can be traced back to the literature distribution service operated by the Canadian Union of Students.

During the dissolution of CUS in 1969, a group of people decided to maintain this service as an independent organization named Hogtown Press. Hogtown made available many of the old CUS papers as well as many new titles – some original and some reprinted in pamphlet form from other sources. The collective discontinued its activities in 1971-72 with the decline of the student movement and the New Left.

In the Spring of 1972 the University of Toronto Students' Administrative Council purchased all the remaining Hogtown stock and continued the distribution service.

In the Fall of 1972, SAC turned over the operation to what immediately became an editorial and production collective calling itself New Hogtown Press. SAC provided this organization with operating funds; and although SAC retained ownership, at no time did it interfere with editorial decision-making.

The collective has expanded to its present membership of nine, greatly increased the number of titles, and broadened its readership. This progress has necessitated some changes. We have become too large an operation to continue to depend upon the Students' Council alone. Now that we are a non-profit corporation, we hope to be able to expand and develop, with a little help from our friends.

The titles listed in this catalogue indicate the scope of our interests. We hope to distribute an increasing amount of working class material and writing from the Canadian Left in general. Our aim is to promote a comprehensive selection of literature dealing with critical issues in Canadian society from a socialist perspective.

WE NEED YOUR HELP

Because of our new independent status, we will be financially unstable for some time to come. We hope that you, our friends and customers, will want to help us survive.

Some ways you can help:

Distribute catalogues for us in your area: in your place of work; on your campus; to your friends. Just write, and we'll send you as many as you want.

Approach libraries, bookstores and organizations in your area. Leave catalogues, tell them about us and encourage them to stock and distribute our material.

Tell us about publications that you think we should distribute. Local groups often publish material that deserves wider distribution than they are able to give it themselves.

Send us manuscripts. All material will be carefully considered.

We will gratefully accept donations in any amount. We are seeking charitable status under the income tax act.

DONATIONS

For a donation of $25.00 we will send you one each of any new items we publish during the following year. You will also be able to purchase any quantity of any titles we have available at a discount of 25% for one year.

Primary Sources in Canadian Working Class History
1860-1930

R.G. Hann, G.S. Kealey, L. Kealey, P. Warrian. Primary Sources in Canadian Working Class History, 1860-1930. (Dumont Press Graphix & Jimuel Briggs Society, 1974) This work provides researchers with a comprehensive guide to previously neglected aspects of English Canadian social history. It includes materials on working class culture as well as working class politics and organization. The introduction outlines the assumptions of the authors in compiling the book and suggests methods of reconstructing Canadian working class history.

OUR SCHOOLS SERVE THE RULING CLASS

l'école au service de la class dominante

Québec Teachers' Corporation Manifesto. Our Schools Serve The Ruling Class. (NHP, 1973) This manifesto (prepared for the 22nd Congress of the CEQ, June '72) addresses itself to a critique of Québec society, the role of education in this society, and the teachers' current role in the perpetuation of its problems. The final chapter offers recommendations to the Congress for radical action to reverse this role.

Stephen Arnold. Third World Literature or Absurd World Literature? A Canadian, Future, Socialist Perspective. (NHP, 1973) Arnold demands that Canadian scholars actively and imaginatively align Canadian literature with the Third World literary context. "Since Canada is definitely a colony, the colonial aspect of its literature should be studied. Since Canadians should be led to overthrow the colonial yoke, their attention should be drawn to whatever signs exist in her literature of the better life that independence and socialism would bring."

B76 $.50

Next Year Country. A new magazine of Saskatchewan politics and events which is an alternative to the commercial press. It covers the decisions of government and business as they affect Saskatchewan people, as well as featuring aspects of the province's history which are left out of textbooks.

Canadian History

- C101 Stuart Jamieson. Times of Trouble: Labour Unrest and Industrial Conflict in Canada, 1900-1966. (Queen's Printer, 1968) Published originally as a study for the Task Force on Labour Relations, this book has not received the widespread attention that it deserves. Written from an admittedly pro-labour viewpoint, this study is perhaps the best single-volume history of twentieth century Canadian industrial unrest.
542pp $5.50
- C98 Greg Keilty, ed. 1837: Revolution in the Canadas as Told by William Lyon MacKenzie. (NC Press, 1974) A collection of MacKenzie's writings, set in a narrative framework provided by the editor.
236pp $2.25
- * C92 Jack Scott. Sweat and Struggle. Working Class Struggles in Canada. Vol.1: 1789-1899. (New Star Books, 1974) An account of early labour history, liberally illustrated and furnished with citations from the primary sources.
209pp $2.00
- C88 Charles Lipton. The Trade Union Movement of Canada 1827-1959. (NC Press, 1973; 3rd edition) This new edition records organized labour's progress through approximately 130 years of Canadian history. The new postscript is a strong appeal to Canadian workers for a sovereign trade union movement.
284pp $3.95
- * B81 The Decline and Fall of a Good Idea: CCF-NDP Manifestoes, 1932-1969. (NHP, 1974) With an introduction by Michael S. Cross. This pamphlet contains the main party statements from the Calgary Programme to the Waffle Manifesto, with a critical introduction by the editor of Canadian Forum and the Canadian Historical Review.
48pp $1.25
- B65 Daniel Drache. Rediscovering Canadian History. (HP, 1971) Discusses alternate sources in Canadian and Québec history.

NEW STAR BOOKS / VANCOUVER

"The aspect of history that concerns the exploitation of people and their resistance to it is left largely untouched by historians. There is not in it the romance of the 'great man' theme, nor the heroic adventure and drama of personal combat so popular among cloistered scholars. Besides, there is an element of danger involved in providing people with a knowledge of real history."

THE
AND FALL
OF A GOOD IDEA

CCF-NDP MANIFESTOES
1932 to 1969

With an introduction by Michael S. Cross

The Decline and Fall of a Good Idea: CCF-NDP Manifestoes, 1932-1969. (NHP, 1974) With an introduction by Michael S. Cross. The most important documents in Canadian social-democratic history are here gathered under one cover for the first time. From the Calgary Programme to the Waffle Manifesto, one can trace the divergent currents of thought throughout the development of the CCF-NDP. Michael Cross' critical introduction contributes to the analysis of these trends.

Delays and Apologies

Some titles promised in our Fall 1973 catalogue have so far failed to appear. We apologize for the inconvenience. (Nobody's perfect.)

- B66 The Need for a Workers' Political Organization. This pamphlet has been delayed in translation. Since the publishers are unable to give us a release date, we are no longer accepting orders. Instead we are making available this title in the original French. See C66 on p.11.
- B73 David Cook. Utopian Liberalism: The Crisis in Education. This title has been held up in the editorial stage. We are pessimistically giving a release date of September 1, 1974. Advance orders should be sent without prepayment.
- B75 The Exclusion of Women from Canadian Medical Schools. This title has been cancelled.
- B83 Eight Men Speak. This title has been delayed. We are unable to give a release date at this time. Any advance orders should be sent without prepayment.
- C7 Leo Johnson. Incomes, Disparity and Poverty in Canada Since World War II. (Revised 1974) In anticipation of being able to publish this revised version, we have allowed our stock of the original pamphlet to run out (A7 Incomes, Disparity and Impoverishment . . ., 1973). The expected release date for the new version is June 1, 1974. Advance orders should be sent without prepayment.

Since it is often more convenient to buy publications at a local bookstore, we are listing those which carry some of our material.
