the New Hogtown Press

New Hogtown Press is a non-profit publishing and distributing enterprise based in Toronto. Our aim is to make available a comprehensive selection of popular literature presenting a socialist critique of capitalist society. We are particularly interested in historical and strategic perspectives on the working class in Canada and Quebec and writing from the Canadian Left in general. We publish original material and distribute books, pamphlets, and periodicals published by other progressive groups which might otherwise have a limited readership. We welcome manuscripts for consideration.

On Active Service in War and Peace

Politics and Ideology in the American Historical Profession

Jesse Lemisch

Introduction by Thomas Schofield

This is a revised text of Lemisch's bitter, well-documented attack on the American historical profession for its rabid anti-radicalism and its complicity in American imperialism. Originally presented in 1969, Lemisch's paper has become an underground classic and is now made generally available for the first time. The introduction raises similar questions about the politics of the Canadian historical profession and situates Lemisch's pamphlet in the turmoil of the sixties. Published
New Hogtown Press, 1975

Eight Men Speak and Other Plays

Introduction by Robin Endres

Agitprop theatre of the thirties from the pages of the Canadian Masses and the repertoire of the Toronto-based Workers' Theatre group. Included are plays by Dorothy Livesay, Oscar Ryan, Frank Love, and others, featuring Eight Men Speak, the full-length, six-act dramatization of the imprisonment of Tim Buck and seven other Communist Party members under the infamous Bill 98. Foreword by Stanley Ryerson. Illustrated. Fall 1975
New Hogtown Press, 1975

Four Essays on the Working Class

Martin Glaberman

In these essays, former autoworker Martin Glaberman discusses the nature of the modern working class, its struggle against capital and against bureaucratized unions, and the formation and transformation of its consciousness and methods of struggle. Included are examinations of differing Marxist views of the working class; of the ways in which workers' interests are separate and indeed contrary to those of unions; and of the theories of working class consciousness set out by Stanley Aronowitz and Jeremy Brecher. Fall 1975

The Great War and Canadian Society

A fascinating collection of interviews with men and women now living in Toronto on their experiences during the First World War. The first section depicts pre-war Canadian life from the viewpoints of farmers, city-dwellers, and immigrants. The second section explores the impact of the war on Canadian society. Soldiers describe army life and discipline, and civilians recall their efforts on the homefront. The last section on the post-war period contains reflections on the effect of the war and some accounts of the Roaring Twenties. Fall 1975

Imperialism, Nationalism, and Canada

Introduction by John Saul

A collection of nine original essays offering refreshingly new interpretations of Canada's status in the system of world imperialism and of the internal dynamics of class and race within the Canadian nation state. A valuable contribution to an understanding of the role of nationalism in Canadian socialist politics. Winter 1975

Hogtown: Working Class Toronto at the Turn of the Century

Gregory S. Kealey

An interesting essay on working class life in late Victorian Toronto, during the period of transition to industrial capitalism. It describes the sweating system, diet, housing, factory conditions, and women workers. A revised version of Working Class Toronto, 1973. 30pp

New Hogtown Press, 1974

D6/$.80

Farmers Confront Industrialism

Some Historical Perspectives on Ontario Agrarian Movements

Russell Hann

A useful analysis of agrarian opposition to industrialism in late 19th century Ontario, which treats the Dominion Grange and the Patrons of Industry as anti-capitalist in outlook. A revised edition of Some Historical Perspectives on Canadian Agrarian Political Movements. 32pp

New Hogtown Press, 1975

D1/$.75

Rediscovering Canadian History

Daniel Drache

A select, annotated bibliography of alternative sources in Canadian and Quebec history. Shows that a counter-body of historical writings on Canada exists and is readily accessible to those who reject the class bias of official histories. 13pp

Hogtown Press, 1971

B65/$.20

She Named It Canada

The Corrective Collective

A cartoon history of Canada. "A useful supplement to your understanding (or lack of it) about how this country came to be." Third revised edition. 80pp

Press Gang Publishers, 1972

B3/$1.00

The People's History of Cape Breton

A history of the common people of Cape Breton, of their day-to-day fight to improve their working conditions, and their struggle to build a better way of life. Cape Breton is portrayed as the birthplace of militant working class struggle in Canada. 48pp

People's History, 1971

A5/$.25

The Communist Threat to Canada, 1947

Canadian Chamber of Commerce

"The Canadian Chamber of Commerce believes that it has a responsibility to all Canadians to show that the theory and practice of Communism is incompatible with the way of life which Canadians know and which most of us wish to retain." Analyzes the nature and operation of Communism in Canada. 40pp

New Hogtown Press, 1973

A4/$.40

Breaking Down Myths of Peace and Harmony in Canadian Labour History

Lorne Brown

A summary and discussion of Stuart Jamieson's Times of Trouble. Also contains interviews with Fred Tipping, a member of the Winnipeg General Strike Committee of 1919, and Fred Lange, an eyewitness to the events of Bloody Saturday during the Winnipeg strike. 27pp

Canadian Dimension, 1974

Times of Trouble

Labour Unrest and Industrial Conflict in Canada,
1900-1966

Stuart Jamieson

Published originally as a study for the Task Force on Labour Relations, this book is perhaps the best single volume history of 20th century Canadian industrial unrest. Written from a pro-labour viewpoint. 542pp

Queen's Printer, 1968

C101/$7.50

Sweat and Struggle

Working Class Struggles in Canada. Vol 1: 1789-1899

Jack Scott

An account of early Canadian labour history. "The aim is to set the act of struggle in the forefront and to present organization in its proper place — secondary and subservient to the struggle, an improvised vehicle used in the preliminary skirmishes with capital along the road to a better world." 210pp

New Star Books, 1974

C92/$2.95***

The Trade Union Movement of Canada 1827-1959

Charles Lipton

Traces organized labour's progress through approximately 130 years of Canadian history. A new postscript makes a strong appeal to Canadian workers for a sovereign trade union movement.

Third edition. 284pp

NC Press, 1973

C88/$4.95

The Decline and Fall of a Good Idea

CCF-NDP Manifestoes, 1932-1969

Introduction by Michael S. Cross

The most important documents in Canadian social-democratic history are collected together for the first time in this pamphlet. These are: the Calgary Programme, 1932; the Regina Manifesto, 1933; the Election Manifesto, 1944; the Winnipeg Declaration, 1956; the New Party Declaration, 1961; the Waffle Manifesto, 1969; and the Marshmallow Resolution, 1969. Michael Cross analyzes the divergent trends of thought throughout the development of the CCF-NDP. 48pp

New Hogtown Press, 1974

B81/$1.25***

The Emergence of the Canadian Working Class Movement, 1845-75

Steven Langdon

This valuable and readable study traces the gradual growth of organizational cohesion and class consciousness among central Canadian working people, in the context of industrialization. It argues that this growth had reached significant proportions and a relatively radical political perspective by the early 1870's. It emphasizes the active role of working people in shaping themselves as a class. 32pp

Poverty in Wealth

The Capitalist Labour Market and Income Distribution
in Canada

Leo A. Johnson

This study brings together data relating to the underlying economic structure of the capitalist labour market and suggests some general theories towards an understanding of poverty in Canada. Johnson argues that poverty reports to date have created a picture that tragically divides the poor from the working class and this artificial polarization between employed and un-employed necessarily prohibits real progress towards a long term solution for poverty. 38pp

New Hogtown Press, 1974

D7/$1.25

Imperialism and the National Question in Canada

Steve Moore and Debi Wells

A Marxist analysis of Canada's relationship to the world imperialist system and a critique of the left nationalist viewpoint. "By using rigorous techniques, the authors have introduced a mass of data and wide-ranging inquiry into the nature of the Canadian capitalist class. Their conclusions, although they are bound to be the subject of wide debate, are a giant step towards the resolution of the left's division on theory and strategy." Leo Johnson, Introduction 120pp

Working Class Studies

A Guide to Working Class History

A critical guide to resources on the history of working people in North America, with a chapter on Canada. Highlights the best available sources—books, films, and records—which are lively and interesting and which convey an accurate sense of working class history. Useful for a wide range of individual readers as well as teachers, librarians, and study groups. Second edition. 40pp
New England Free Press / New Hogtown Press, 1975

D121/$.60

A Very Ordinary Life as told to Rolf Knight

Phyllis Knight reflects upon her life in pre-World War I and Weimar Germany, her immigration to Canada, and the ensuing years as a semi-migrant labourer in the 1930s. We learn about the family life of a frontier worker, life in working class Vancouver in the 1940s, routine and change and old age. A history shared by many Canadians but ignored by "the history books." 317pp

Counter-planning on the Shop Floor

Bill Watson

A discussion, with concrete examples, of the power struggle that goes on every day on the shop floor between, on the one hand, workers and their needs and demands and, on the other, capital and its imperatives. 10pp
Radical America, 1971

D147/TBA

Literature on the American Working Class

John Evansohn & Associates

An excellent bibliography focusing on the white American working class. It is divided into sections on American working class history, the working classes in other countries, sociological studies of the American worker, racism and ethnic conflict, and working class culture. 55pp
Bay Area Radical Education Project, 1969

C104/$.20

What's Happening to the American Worker?

David Montgomery

Montgomery, one of the best American historians of the working class, here turns his attention to contemporary workers. A former organizer for the United Electrical Workers, he writes with sympathy and insight about rank and file struggles on the shop floor and argues that this syndicalist militancy is crucial to an understanding of American workers. 27pp
Radical America, c.1970

Women's Studies

Women at Work: Ontario 1850-1930

An anthology of nine articles dealing with specific aspects of women's employment in Ontario at the turn of the century, exploring both the reality of women's work and its significance in Canada's economic past. Proposes the framework which begins to answer why the double exploitation of women as mothers and workers has persisted to the present. An important contribution to the history of Canadian working women. 405pp
Women's Press, 1974

D156/$6.00

Cuban Women Now

Margaret Randall

A moving and revealing testimony by Cuban women who describe their lives in revolutionary Cuba. These interviews provide insights into the ways in which the Cuban revolution has been instrumental in liberating women from their traditional roles, and also its limitations. 375pp
Women's Press & Dumont Press Graphix, 1974

The Political Economy of Women's Liberation

Margaret Benston

"We are not only discriminated against, we are exploited." An analysis emphasizing women as housewives and child-rearers.

14pp

New Hogtown Press, 1970

A36/$.25

More on the Political Economy of Women's Liberation

Mickey and John Rowntree

A sequel to Benston's paper. The Rowntrees challenge Benston's emphasis on women as houseworkers, countering her argument with a discussion of women's participation in wage labour. 6pp

New Hogtown Press, 1970

A37/$.20

Women in Evolution

Kathleen Gough

Looks at the forms of oppression women suffer and extrapolates general directions the women's movement might take in response. 11pp

New Hogtown Press, 1973

A34/$.25

Liberation of Women

Sexual Repression and the Family

Laurel Limpus

Deals with some of the theoretical problems of the liberation of women, particularly as they relate to sexuality and sexual repression. 15pp

New England Free Press, 1971

A32/$.20

Marxism and Feminism

Charnie Guettel

Critically reviews the writings of Simone de Beauvoir, Kate Millett, Juliet Mitchell, and Shulamith Firestone and discusses the limitations of feminist theory. Guettel argues that the liberation of women depends on socialism, and the further development of socialism depends in part on the further liberation of women. 62pp

Women's Press, 1973

D131/$1.50

Witches, Midwives, and Nurses

A History of Women Healers

Barbara Ehrenreich and Deirdre English

An initial effort to document and recapture the history of women as healers. It examines two phases in the rise of male dominance in healthcare: the suppression of witches in medieval Europe and the development of the male medical profession in the 19th century in America. 46pp

Feminist Press, 1973

B70/$1.25

Never Done

Three Centuries of Women's Work in Canada

Corrective Collective

A picture-and-story album of the lives of women in Canada. The first part groups together women who pioneered in different times and in different parts of the country; the second half deals with the increasing variety of women's work outside the home, as well as the continuing saga of the soapsuds. "Canada's history of survival and growth is in great measure the result of women's work." 160pp

Women's Press, 1974

D130/$3.75

Women in Struggle #1 & #2

Toronto Wages for Housework Collective

The perspective advanced in these two pamphlets is that the first and fundamental exploitation of women is as unwaged workers in the home. The articles include political statements and analyses, and documents about the struggles of Wages for Housework groups that are taking place internationally. #1: 21pp; #2: 42pp

Toronto Wages for Housework Collective, 1975

#1 D161/$.50, #2 D162/$.50

Wages for Housework Notebook #1

Montreal Power of Women Collective

Three theoretical articles which deal with the wage demand as the beginning of the struggle against capitalist division of labour and as the key to restructuring social relations and unifying the working class. Articles by Guiliana Pompei and Silvia Federici. 18pp

Montreal Power of Women Collective, 1975

D163/$.50

Women's Liberation and Revolution

Sheila Rowbotham

Lists books, pamphlets and articles which explore the relationship between feminism and revolutionary politics. It covers such areas as the effect of capitalism on women at work and in the home, women and the socialist movement, women's liberation and colonialism, the origins of the recent women's liberation movements, and the connection between culture, consciousness, and social change. 24pp

Falling Wall Press, 1974

D144/$.75

Sexual Relations and the Class Struggle

Love and the New Morality

Alexandra Kollantai

These two essays graphically describe how our personal life is shaped and distorted by capitalist society, and argue that the changes in sexual morality which occurred in Russia were part of the struggle of a class to take power. Introduction by the translator, Alix Holt. 26pp

Falling Wall Press, 1972

D143/$.80

Women Workers Struggle for their Rights

Alexandra Kollantai

An account of the organization of women early in this century, in which the author stresses the importance of separate women's organizations. Includes a new preface and an introduction to Kollantai's life by Sheila Rowbotham. Third edition. 35pp

Falling Wall Press, 1973

D142/$.80

The Power of Women and the Subversion of the Community

Mariarosa Dalla Costa and Selma James

One of the primary statements of the Wages for Housework perspective. It shows the way in which women's work inside and outside the home is basic to capitalist society, and emphasizes the power that this gives women in the struggle to destroy that society and create a new one. 78pp

Falling Wall Press, 1972

D141/$1.40

Sex, Race and Class

Selma James

This pamphlet analyzes how the black movement and the women's movement have redefined the working class struggle to include the wageless. It shows how these movements reflect real divisions of power within the working class based on the hierarchy of wages, and how these divisions are fundamental to capital's power over the whole working class. 34pp

Falling Wall Press, 1975

D139/$1.20

The Family Allowance Under Attack

Suzie Fleming

This paper is a response to the 1972 proposal by the British government to abolish the family allowance. The author's chief concern is with "what I think women have learnt about the state in relation to us—its plans, its characteristic attitudes, and manoeuvres, and some of their implications for us." 12pp

Falling Wall Press, 1973

D140/$.30

Current Issues

The Artistic Woodwork Strike

A Lesson for the Canadian Labour Movement
Right to Strike Committee

The history and lessons of the long and bitter strike in Toronto, 1974, that defended the right to organize and the right to strike in small plants employing mainly immigrants. 30pp
Right To Strike Committee, 1974

D118/$.50

On the Generalized Recession of the International Capitalist Economy

Ernest Mandel

A discussion of the current (1975-5) crisis in the international capitalist economy. Mandel examines the features, prospects, and consequences of the first generalized recession since World War II— the first to strike at all great imperialist powers simultaneously. Well documented. 24pp
Forward Publications, 1975

D159/$.60

Working and Not Working at the Post Office

Peter Taylor

An account by a postal worker of the way the job tries to dominate life both at work and away from it, and of the way he and his fellow workers struggle against the nature of work and its demands. 28pp
1974

D149/$.50

More Than the Price Is Rigged: The Food Industry

Exploding Myths Collective

The first in a series of popular presentations of critical issues for Canadians, it offers a brief, interesting, clear analysis of the Canadian food industry, in comic book form. 14pp
Exploding Myths Comic Collective, 1974

D106/$.25

The Earth Belongs to the People

Ecology and Power

R.G. Slater, D. Kitt, D. Widelock, P. Kangas

A Marxist approach to ecological problems, presented in a readable, illustrated pamphlet. This examination of environmental issues demonstrates that ecology and pollution are not "people problems," but on the contrary are directly related to the structures of capitalist society. 46pp
People's Press, 1970

A26/$.75

Ojibway Warriors' Society in Occupied Anicinabe Park, Kenora, Ontario, August, 1974

Third World Literature or Absurd World Literature?

A Canadian, Future, Socialist Perspective

Stephen Arnold

Arnold demands that Canadian scholars assess Canadian literature "through the literary and critical optic of the Third World." "Since Canada is definitely a colony, the colonial aspect of its literature should be studied. Since Canadians should be led to overthrow the colonial yoke, their attention should be drawn to whatever signs exist in her literature of the better life that independence and socialism would bring." 17pp
