NEW*ASSATA
An AutobiographyAssata Shakur*

On May 2, 1973, Black Panther Assata Shakur, aka Joanne Chesimard, lay in the hospital, close to death, handcuffed to her bed while local, state and federal police attempted to question her about the shootout on the New Jersey Turnpike that claimed the life of a white state trooper. Long a target of an FBI campaign to harass Black nationalist organizations she was incarcerated for four years prior to her conviction on flimsy evidence in 1977. (Also listed in Biography section.) ## DON'T BE AFRAID, GRINGO A Honduran Woman Speaks from the Heart

Medea Benjamin (ed.)

"Elvia Alvarado speaks as a woman, a mother, and as a peasant organizer. Her story tells of the courageous efforts of her peasant communities to obtain such basic needs as land, food, education and health care. It is an important contribution to the firsthand accounts that communicate the everyday effects of political and social forces." -- Isabel Lettier, Chilean Human Rights Activist (Also listed in Latin America and Caribbean section.)

"We learn not only how Elvia organizes campesinos to recover rights that have been taken from them, but how our government interferes on the side of injustice -- and what we can do about it." --Robert McAfee Brown, Prof. Emeritus of Theology and Ethics.

CIA: A FORGOTTEN HISTORY U.S. Global Interventions Since World War II

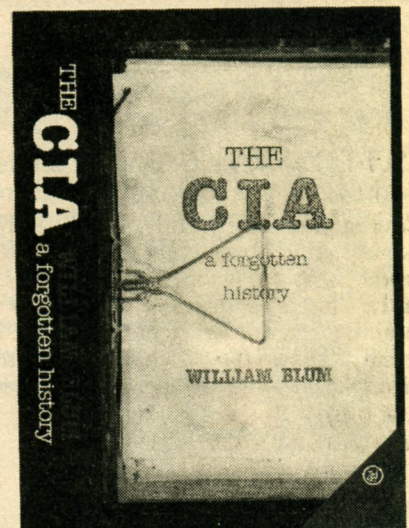

William Blum

This book tells the remarkable story of the multifarious US/CIA interventions in more than fifty foreign countries. Here are all the details of these exploits, the operations behind the overthrow of governments, suppression of revolutions, perversions of elections, assassination of leaders, manipulation of trade unions and other organizations. Here is the account of each of the most significant American interventions. (Also listed in Politics: General section.)

THE DEBT SQUADS The U.S., The Banks, and Latin America

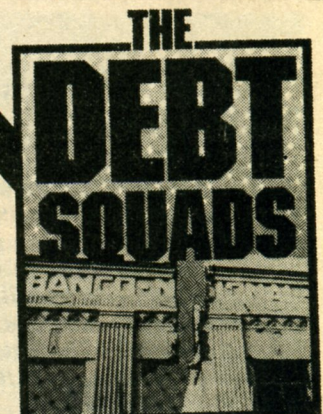

Sue Branford and Bernardo Kucinski

With major banks now writing off a part of their outstanding loans, the debt crisis remains in the news. The problems of a continent struggling, under pressure from IMF programmes, to keep up its repayments, are having world-wide repercussions. Now, in contrast to the analyses which have reflected the interests of the banks, this book brings in the crucial Latin American perspective. It reveals the dramatic effect that the pressure to keep up repayments has had on the debtor nations. (Also listed in Political Economy section.)

HACK!Home Truths About Foreign NewsEd Harriman

This book is about HACKS – journalists, the men and women who fly into famines and wars and in a few days churn out stories telling the world what has been going on. It shows how HACKS work and the pressures that they face through some of the big news stories and hidden wars of the past decade. It's also about 'newspeak' and double talk to square what is actually happening to the complacencies of news organisations at home. Finally, it's about how one HACK thinks; how he has picked his way through the political minefield of journalism and survived with only the loss of a few stories chopped and a few others consigned to the waste bin.

IF THIS IS TREASON, I AM GUILTYAllan A. Boesak*

Allan Boesak has been in the forefront of the struggle against apartheid in South Africa and has been increasingly recognized as a political as well as a religious leader. This collection of addresses and sermons from 1979 to 1986 shows all aspects of Boesak's involvement in the anti-apartheid movement. It includes pieces that offer analysis of the church's role in political issues, as well as sermons and articles showing a deep biblical understanding of the issues at stake. Among the selections are several of Boesak's important recent public speeches.

AFRICA: WHAT CAN BE DONE?

Ben Turok

Explores the concepts and strategies needed by radical forces in Africa if they are to play an effective role in lifting the Continent out of economic stagnation and political repression. The author's investigations are grounded in the thinking of a new generation of African intellectuals. These scholars and political activists often disagree, but they are united in their belief that genuine independence can be guaranteed only if Africa takes a socialist path.

Myth or Reality

Cheikh Anta Diop

This is a one-volume translation of the major sections of C.A. Diop's two books, Nations nègres et culture and Antériorité des civilisations nègres, which have profoundly influenced thinking about Africa around the world. This book presents Dr. Diop's main thesis – that historical, archeological and anthropological evidence supports the theory that the civilization of ancient Egypt was actually Negroid in origin.

THE CRISIS IN AFRICAN AGRICULTURE

Mohamed Lamine Gakou

Why is Africa no longer able to feed itself? Lamine Gakou poses this question against a background of meticulous evidence charting the dimensions of the Continent's agricultural decline. He shows what has happened to overall food production, grain output, and levels of nutrition. He argues that the solution to Africa's food crisis must be primarily political. Technical measures can only work once African peoples have taken control of their own societies.

ERITREA: STRUGGLE FOR INDEPENDENCE

Robert Machida

One of the longest and most bitter nationalist struggles in Africa is being fought in Eritrea. The Horn of Africa has been the scene of tremendous levels of political upheaval, famine and intermittent war. At the centre of these regional problems is the question of the rights of self-determination of various submerged nationalities. The Eritrean-Ethiopian conflict is perhaps the most costly human tragedy to afflict the region in the last quarter century.

FUELING THE FIRE*U.S. Policy and the Western Sahara ConflictLeo Kamil*

This essay describes and analyzes the role of the United States in the Western Sahara conflict. It is not a happy record, but one of malice and conspiracy, in which the various administrations of the United States abandoned the broader principles of justice and support for the right to self-determination. Instead, they decided to back a brutal war against the Sahrawi people in support of Morocco's illegal occupation of the territory.

MOTHER, SING FOR ME People's Theatre in Kenya

Ingrid Bjorkman

This play, acted by the villagers of Kamiriithu, was banned after a few public rehearsals. The Kenyan authorities subsequently ordered the total destruction of the village cultural centre which had been the play's birthplace. The thousands who saw the rehearsals recognized the play's message that the oppression of colonial times still bore down on them in the 1980s and the key to freedom lay in rejecting the divisive myth of tribalism and uniting as Kenyans.

A POLITICAL ECONOMY OF THE AFRICAN CRISIS

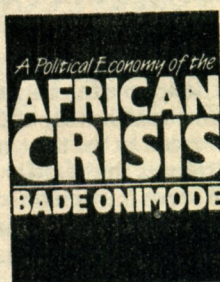

Bade Onimode

The economies of almost all African countries are in a state of crisis, and in some cases actual disintegration. This is a crisis not of natural disasters, but of human making, and in dramatic detail, Professor Onimode shows how this is now reflected in African countries' contracting economies, soaring unemployment, mounting external debts, and periodic outbreaks of famine. He examines the role of multinational corporations, the export of capital, and class and economic distortions.

REVOLUTION AND COUNTER-REVOLUTION IN AFRICA

Essays in Contemporary Politics

Nzongola-Ntalaja

In this collection of essays, one of Africa's most eminent political scientists investigates crucial problems confronting the African continent: its chronic instability and sectional conflict, the nature of class rule and the failure of the post-colonial state to deliver on the promises of independence. The relevance of Marxist theory to an understanding of Africa's social reality is explored, and a theory of national liberation, based on the ideas of Amilcar Cabral, developed.

FUNU*The Unfinished Saga of East TimorJose Ramos-Horta, with a preface by Noam Chomsky*

The struggle of East Timor is unique. It was recently invaded and occupied not by European colonialists, but by another Third World country. The shocking genocide of its people is being carried out with the complicity if not collaboration of both East and West, and the silence (with notable exceptions) of many Third World nations. Yet the East Timorese fight on for the independence that is every people's right.

DILEMMAS OF THIRD WORLD COMMUNISM*The Destruction of the PKI in IndonesiaOlle Tornquist*

Dilemmas of Third World Communism is a study of the Indonesian Communist Party that aims to answer more general questions about the difficulties, and even defeats, encountered by so many left-wing movements in the Third World. Olle Tornquist argues that one fundamental reason for the Indonesian military's successful destruction of the Party lay in the Party's failure to analyse the nature of the post-colonial capitalist society that was emerging.

CRISIS OF EXTERNAL DEPENDENCE*The Political Economy of Foreign Aid to BangladeshRehman Sobhan*

This book presents an informed, wide-ranging and critical account of the impact of foreign aid on Bangladesh's economy and society. The author shows the distortive consequences that, in practice, aid has on his country's path of development, productive forces, and process of class formation. He demonstrates conclusively that Bangladesh cannot continue to rely on aid as its principal strategy of development.

ASIA: MILITARISATION AND REGIONAL CONFLICTYoshikazu Sakamoto (ed.)*

Asia is a region where both superpowers have intervened on land and stationed increasing naval forces. The continent has also witnessed numerous inter-state wars. In this book, scholars from the region describe and try to understand these tensions, and also pose alternative options for peace. They examine the militarization of south-east Asia, the Pacific Islands and Japan; regional security issues; and specific conflicts such as the Iran-Iraq war.

INDONESIA: LAW, PROPAGANDA, AND TERROR,Julie Southwood and Patrick Flanagan*

In this study of present-day Indonesia under the Suharto regime, the authors describe and explain the violent means the regime has consistently resorted to in order to maintain and legitimize its position. The significance of this book lies in the detailed account which illuminates the complex ways in which such regimes combine terror, a perverted legal system, and propaganda to force entire populations into submission.

PEASANTS AND CLASSES*A Study in Differentiation in BangladeshAtiur Rahman*

Dr. Rahman shows how in Bangladesh old relations of production and exchange are changing, poor peasants are being dispossessed as the rich enlarge their landholdings, and proletarianization is making headway. Mass rural impoverishment and political unrest are the likely long-term consequences. An introduction by Dr. Terry Byres brings out the wider significance for peasant studies of Rahman's methodology and conclusions.

ANTONIO GRAMSCI*Towards an Intellectual BiographyAlastair Davidson*

This biography lifts the study of Gramsci out of the sterile search for orthodoxy or heresy and instead examines Gramsci's personality in its full moral and intellectual complexity. Davidson has succeeded in integrating the circumstances of Gramsci's life: the childhood in Sardinia, the politics of the Italian left in the 1920s, the years of exile and prison – with his developing political and philosophical ideas.

MY FIGHT AGAINST APARTHEID

Michael Dingake

Imprisoned for 15 years on Robben Island in 1965, Michael Dingake's autobiography clearly reveals how his whole life has been bound up with the struggle for liberation in South Africa. His story, full of humour as well as political insight, takes us from his childhood days in Botswana to his recruitment into the ANC during the mass struggles of the 1950s, from his underground work in the 1960s to his kidnapping and imprisonment in 1965.

NO. 46 - STEVE BIKO

Hilda Bernstein

Steven Biko was the forty-sixth person to die in security police detention in South Africa. But, for the first time, the inquest revealed full and horrifying details of how political detainees are treated. By analysing the court proceedings Hilda Bernstein has reconstructed the events that led to Biko's death, even though what actually happened to him in Room 619 is known only to his interrogators.

ABANDON AFFLUENCEF.E. Trainer*

This work reviews the most recent evidence on major global problems, examining resource and energy scarcity, environmental destruction, Third World underdevelopment, international conflict, and the deteriorating quality of life. The author argues these problems are ultimately generated by the West's commitment to affluence and growth inherent in its economic system. Only fundamental social change, not technical solutions, can provide the solution.

Critics have argued that, instead of helping Africans to achieve greater self-reliance, aid has often increased their dependence and vulnerability to forces over which they exercise no control. This book provides concrete evidence that a participatory methodology not only provides donor agencies with a better insight into the workings of projects they aid, but also strengthens grassroots movements and national capacity to use aid more effectively.

DEVELOPMENT THEORY IN TRANSITION*The Dependency Debate and Beyond: Third World ResponsesMagnus Blomstrom and Bjorn Hettne*

This book is an outline of development theory since 1945, and emphasizes the importance of Dependency Theory as a catalyst in forming more relevant and less ethnocentric approaches. It is also the story of the rise to intellectual hegemony of a whole generation of Latin American, Caribbean, African and Indian political economists. This book is a fascinating history of development theory from a Third World perspective.

OUR COMMON FUTURE: A READER'S GUIDE

The Bruntland Report Explained

Don Hinrichsen

This beautifully illustrated work is a readable account of the world's development issues, as culled from the 'Bruntland Report'. The message that new sources of money must be found to support the pursuit of sustainable become much more digestible through the beautiful photographs. (Also listed in Bestsellers section.)

FOOD 2000

Global Policies for Sustainable Agriculture

World Commission on Environment and Development (WCED)

World food production is characterized by unsaleable surpluses in Europe and North America, alongside mass hunger in the Third World. This report to the WCED argues this pattern is ecologically destructive and morally unacceptable and that the loss of cropland, forests and fertility is not inevitable. It proposes solutions to meet the growing demand for food, and to improve the environment in areas lost to agricultural production.

MODERNIZATION AND DEVELOPMENT

The Search for Alternative Paradigms

S.C. Dube

Taking as his starting point the peculiarly Western origins of the modernization notion, and the failures of development it has inspired in practice, the author argues that an alternative development paradigm can no longer take the narrow goal of economic growth as its primary objective. Its usefulness as a guide to the new thinking about development taking place in the Third World is further enhanced by the extensive and thematically organized bibliography.

MUD, MUD

The potential of earth-based materials for Third World Housing.

Anil Agarwal

Mud is the most widely used building material in the world, yet it is almost invariably ignored by governments, development banks and aid agencies. In the Third World, virtually all houses are far below the most minimal standards of health and hygiene. Today, mud perhaps offers the only practical prospect for building the five hundred million houses which will be needed in the next twenty years.

POWER AND NEED IN AFRICA

Basic Human Needs and Development Policies.

Ben Wisner

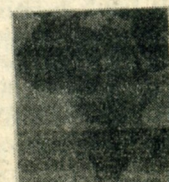

Ben Wisner makes an impassioned case for giving the poor of Africa the means to develop their own future. He shows how a new African renaissance could spring from a radical basic-needs approach. A renaissance which has as its constituent elements environmental sustainability, women's emancipation and social justice, will stand as the living refutation of the new, conservative "pragmatism" so fashionable among development "experts" now.

Can better stoves really help the two billion people in the Third World who use wood to cook and heat? Do they save fuel? Do they save trees? Stoves and trees examines the new stoves and shows how people buy, collect and use wood in the Third World. It finds that most forests are cleared to supply farmland, not fuelwood. But it does find that stoves can make dwellings safer and healthier, for women, children and their families.

Jacobo Schatan

The solution to the debt crisis cannot lie in reducing interest rates or juggling exchange rates. As this book shows, merely servicing the swelling mountain of debt means a relentless increase in the physical resources Third World countries must export to the West. This book explores the responsibility of the creditors for this situation, as well as that of the debtors.

ACID EARTH*The Global Threat of Acid PollutionJohn McCormick*

Acid Earth is the first global study of acid pollution. It overturns the view that acid rain is solely a West European or North American phenomenon. It describes causes and effects, political implications and the controls already available. It argues that the causes of acid pollution are now well understood, and the methods of control are widely available.

THE FUELWOOD TRAP

Policy and Planning in the SADCC

Barry Munslow, Y.M. Katerere, A.G.E. Ferf, P. O'Keefe

The vast majority of the 60 million people in SADCC countries rely on woodfuel for domestic use. As supplies diminish, the quality of life is deteriorating while the environment becomes more and more degraded. This book looks at the demands to be made on politicians and planners and describes not simply the costs and effects of the problem but also suggests major ways forward.

NATURAL DISASTERS

Acts of God or Acts of Man?

Anders Wijkman and Lloyd Timberlake

The authors argue that "natural disasters" are not so "natural." Surveying the rising damage caused around the world by floods, drought, cyclones, earthquakes and tidal waves, they conclude that these events are "disaster triggers," magnified by the three major contributors to disasters in the Third World: poverty, environmental degradation, and rapid population growth. This book offers new directions and planning for a more sustainable world community.

SAVING THE TROPICAL FORESTS

Judith Gradwohl and Russel Greenberg

The book provides a vision of hope for the tropical rainforests of the world. In Latin America, Africa, India and South East Asia, growing numbers of people are developing techniques and projects specifically designed to promote the wise use and preservation of remaining forest lands. The authors believe that action must be based on the development and improvement of existing alternatives to destruction or it will fail.

The Independent Commission on International Humanitarian Issues (ICHI)

While loggers, ranchers, road and dam builders destroy forests for short-term gains, the world is losing what could be its long-term economic base. Deforestation threatens irreversible climatic changes and the loss of gene pools. Not an ecological treatise, this report focuses on the suffering endured by the people immediately dependent on dwindling forest land and how this process is affecting their health and livelihood.

HELP OR HINDRANCE?United States Economic Aid in Central AmericaKevin Danaher, Medea Benjamin, Philip Berryman (eds)

Help or Hindrance uncovers why the economic crisis in Central America has worsened as U.S. aid has skyrocketed in the 1980s. This hard-hitting report shows how security and military related aid, hidden under the rubric "economic aid", has far surpassed assistance for economic development, and argues convincingly that the positions of the fiscal conservatives, seeking to save U.S. taxpayers' money, and humanitarians, seeking to help the poor, are not necessarily in opposition.

Aid in Central AmericaTHE AMERICAN CONNECTION*Volume 1: State Terror and Popular Resistance in El SalvadorMichael McClintock*

Reveals the U.S. role in introducing new strategies of state terror and counter-insurgency in Central America since the 1960s. Against a backdrop of longstanding class and land ownership patterns the author shows how U.S. refusal to tolerate social reform and its support for brutal security apparatuses have led not only to the current wars in Central America, but inextricably involved the U.S. itself.

This book by three Argentinian authors traces the history of what is Latin America's oldest and largest working class. Its mid-19th century origins in migration from overseas and internal proletarianization are traced. The authors relate the history of Argentinian workers' clashes with both the state and employers and the preponderant influence that anarchists and syndicalists had over the labour movement in the early 20th century.

NICARAGUA: A REVOLUTION UNDER SIEGE

Richard Harris and Carlos M. Vilas (ed.)

Latin American and US scholars and journalists present an independent analysis of the first five years of the Sandinista Revolution. They show the immense problems – organisational, economic, political – faced in transforming a society distorted by decades of the Somoza dictatorship, problems made much more difficult by the USA's continuous pressure since 1979 and the CIA's covert war of subversion.

THE LAST FRONTIER

Fighting Over Land in the Amazon

Sue Branford and Oriel Glock

This richly detailed study of the Amazon Region spells out the mismanagement, corruption, and resulting chaos and brutality of successive Brazilian government development schemes. The present situation in the Amazon and how it came about are vividly portrayed, often in the words of the people interviewed. We learn of the problems and resistance of the Indians, the conflicts between landowners and peasants, and the ecological damage large scale ranching and mining are causing.

NICARAGUA: A NEW KIND OF REVOLUTION

Philip Zwerling with Connie Martin

From these forty-five interviews emerges a vivid picture of how life in Nicaragua has been transformed by the revolution. These interviews, even though some express opposition to the Sandinistas, reveal the depth of the changes that have taken place in Nicaragua, wide-spread support for revolution and almost unanimous opposition to the U.S. supported Contras. Here is the collective voice of a new kind of revolution involving not only traditional Marxists, but many others besides.

Rasta and Resistance is a study of the Rastafarian Movement in all its aspects, from its evolution in the hills of Jamaica to its present manifestations in the streets of Birmingham and the Shashamane Settlement in Ethiopia. It traces the cultural, political and spiritual sources of this movement, highlighting the quest for change among an oppressed people. This book serves to break the intellectual traditions which placed the stamp of millenarianism on Rassta.

TRIUMPH OF THE PEOPLE

The Sandinista Revolution in Nicaragua

George Black

This is the story of Latin America's first successful revolution since Cuba. Here is the first major study of the Sandinista Revolution. It focuses mainly on the years of armed struggle and on the exciting process of consolidation. It shows how the Somoza dynasty came to power and what kind of distorted capitalist "family state" it built under U.S. patronage. The author then tells the story of the overthrow of the dictatorship.

UNDER A SOPRANO SKYSonia Sanchez*

Sanchez's poetry combines her pristine lyricism with her strong voice and black female themes to challenge not only the effete definition of poetry, but also the very intellectual hypocrisy which underguards that effetism. In her poetry, Sonia Sanchez, keenly attuned to the changing moods of the Black community, attests to the continued depth and breadth of her castigation of the social, political and economic evils that stifle the human spirit.

CAPITALISM AND REVOLUTION IN IRAN

Bizhan Jazani

Capitalism and Revolution in Iran brings together some of the most important writings of Bizhan Jazani, one of the founders of Fedaii e Khalq, which was at the centre of armed opposition to the Shah. Today it constitutes the major secular socialist opposition to Ayatollah Khomeini's 'rule of the mullahs'. Jazani presents an analysis of Iranian history and contemporary society.

DISSONANCE IN ZION

Michael Jansen

Michael Jansen, author of The Battle of Beirut, turns in her new book to examine the workings of Israeli politics. She concentrates on the increasing polarization of Israeli society, contrasting the growth of the peace movement with the steady rise of the ultra-right. The author highlights the role of the military in Israeli politics and examines the cultural and social background of the religious parties which exercise such pressure on the Israeli consensus.

SADDAM'S IRAQ Revolution or Reaction?

Cardri (ed.)

Here is a comprehensive and up-to-date account of Iraq under President Saddam Husain. After presenting the country's political history both before and after 1958, the economy and the role of oil are examined, as is the social and class structure, including the position of women, and the military and their political involvement. Stress is laid on the repressive record of the regime, and the continual opposition to it.

THE PLO AND PALESTINE

Abdallah Frangi

This is the first book by a representative of the PLO that explains the history of the Palestinian people and the organization they have built to represent their interests. The author writes always in the hope that a just and lasting peace can be achieved in the Middle East. By providing information not widely known in the West, Dr. Frangi shows why peace cannot be built without PLO participation, and what the PLO's own notion of a durable peace comprises.

WORKERS AND REVOLUTION IN IRAN*A Third World Experience of Workers' ControlAssef Bayat*

Industrial workers in Iran played a major role in the overthrow of the Shah. This account of the shuras, or factory councils, they set up throws new light on the Shah's defeat, and the consequent revolutionary impulses Ayatollah Khomeini subsequently crushed so ruthlessly. This and other Third World examples show how uneven capitalist development can create conditions conducive to struggles for workers' control in advanced as well as in backward economies.

BAREFOOT GEN: A CARTOON STORY OF HIROSHIMA

Keiji Nakazawa with foreword by Paula J. Paul

Barefoot Gen is the powerful, tragic story of the bombing of Hiroshima seen through the eyes of a young boy – the artist himself – growing up in a peace-loving Japanese family. It is a graphic “lest we forget” depiction of nuclear devastation and a troubling index of certain kinds of urban ruin even before the bombs fall.

THE DEADLY CONNECTION Nuclear War and U.S. Intervention

New England Regional Office of the American Friends Service Committee. Joseph Gerson (ed.)

The Deadly Connection explores in depth the relationship between U.S. nuclear policy and past, present, and future U.S. military intervention around the globe. It argues that current nuclear policies are not an aberration but part of a 'seamless web' of foreign policy and military strategies created and maintained by both political parties over the past forty years.

JUST RELEASED*THE IMF AND GHANA*The Confidential RecordEboe Hutchful (ed.)*

This book offers a carefully organised selection of documents of a type which are rarely published for public scrutiny, including IMF and World Bank reports minutes of debt rescheduling conferences a variety of the government's own memoranda and decisions. The author shows why the IMF set out to destroy Ghana's development plans and how IMF-prescribed austerity programme of 1966 led to a stagnation from which the country has still not recovered.

NEW*THE IMF AND THE DEBT CRISIS*The Third World's DilemmaPeter Kerner, Gero Maass, Thomas Siebold, and Rainer Tetzlaff*

A well-documented, up-to-date and readable account of the Third World's debt crisis, the IMF's new role in prescribing domestic economic policies on a more or less permanent basis, and the destruction of long-term development prospects this entails. The authors argue that the only feasible alternative comprises conditional loans geared to reducing the historical structural defects of LDC economies, and administered by a democratized international monetary system.

AN INTRODUCTION TO MARXIST POLITICAL ECONOMY

Bade Onimode

This is a response to what the author sees as a gap in modern Marxist literature, especially in the Third World. The nature of exploitation and profit, capitalist development and crises, the periphery's dependent monetary system, imperialism, multi-nationals, underdevelopment, the state, the need for socialist revolution, and the rise of the bourgeoisie in underdeveloped countries are all explained in detail.

MARXIST ECONOMIC THEORY

Ernest Mandel

Marxist Economic Theory is a major intellectual project which adapts Marx's analysis of capitalism to the world of the late 20th century. Mandel examines post-war upheavals in the development of imperialism, monopoly capitalism and the structure of the state-controlled economies. Issac Deutscher described it as 'the best and most comprehensive popularisation of Marx's economic theory for more than a generation'.

THE WORLD STEEL INDUSTRY

Dynamics of Decline

Faysal Yachir

This book covers the profound changes undergone by the world steel industry since the mid-1970s oil price rise. Faysal Yachir combines technological explanation, economic argument and awareness of the class implications of the changes in the global steel industry to throw light on what is happening to the world economy. His analysis raises questions about the future of traditional manufacturing sectors, and explores the prospects for Third World countries of developing their own industries.

THE DIFFICULT DIALOGUE

Marxism and Nationalism

Ronaldo Munck

For over a century, Marxists and revolutionaries have had to confront the stubborn fact of nationalism. This book is a concise and independent survey of Marxists' attempts to grapple with the enduring power of this manifestation of non-class consciousness. The reader gets a lucid picture of the dynamics of the debate, and the defects that persist in Marxism's troubled relationship with nationalism.

THE NATIONAL QUESTION

Marxist Theory and National Liberation

James M. Blaut

This major exploration of the Marxist theory of national struggle takes issue with various modern contributors, notably Hobsbawm and Nairn. Professor Blaut draws on his wide experience of the Third World to argue that Marxist theory can be a powerful weapon for liberation struggles against colonialism and neo-colonialism. He suggests ways to strengthen the theory, particularly when trying to understand minorities in Western and Third World societies.

THE MEEK AND THE MILITANT

Religion and Power Across the World

Paul N. Siegel

This wide-ranging comparative study of religion by an eminent American scholar opens with the Marxist critique of religion – its explanation of religion's origin and persistence, and how it has acted historically as a bulwark of the social order but also under certain circumstances as a revolutionary force. Part 2 examines the historical roots of Judaism, Catholicism and Protestantism. Part 3 makes a similar study of Hinduism, and Part 4 examines the Soviet Union and China.

THINKING LIKE A MOUNTAIN

Toward a Council of All Beings

John Seed, Joanna Macy, Pat Fleming and Arne Naess. Illustrated by Dailan Pugh

This book of readings, meditations, poems, and workshop notes helps us realize that environmental defense is nothing less than self-defense. It provides a context for ritual identification with the natural environment and so brings a process of 'community therapy' in defense of Mother Earth. An important educational tool for schools, church and community groups, and personal reflection.

WRITINGS ON CIVIL DISOBEDIENCE AND NONVIOLENCELeo Tolstoy*

Here in one volume are most of Tolstoy's major writings on conscience and war. Stressing that the process of peace can only begin with the refusal of the individual to participate in state-organized killing, Tolstoy's writings are particularly relevant in an age when warfare is santinized, packaged, and sold to a populace finding it increasingly difficult to respond in an ethically meaningful way.

APARTHEID MEDIA

Disinformation and Dissent in South Africa

John M. Phelan

A riveting expose of the media and its anti-apartheid struggle in South Africa as well as the intimate face of a universal war between disinformation and dissent, propaganda and truth, state control and individual rights. Through telling anecdote and cross-cultural analysis, Phelan repeatedly demonstrates that the white South African regime's downward spiral into despotism is a cautionary tale for the United States.

APARTHEID'S VIOLENCE AGAINST CHILDREN

International Defence and Aid Fund for Southern Africa (IDAFSA)

This text was the General Working Document of the International Conference on Children, Repression and the Law in Apartheid South Africa, held in Harare, 24-27 September 1987. It shows how apartheid affects the lives of black children in South Africa and the violent means by which the apartheid regime attacks them when they seek to change the conditions under which they live and to join the struggle for liberation.

APARTHEID: THE STORY OF A DISPOSSESSED PEOPLE

Motsoko Pheko

This is a moving and informative piece of work on South Africa. The author rejects the 'empty land' theory when the colonists settled in. He proves irrefutably that the history of Azania does not begin in 1652, as some western historians would like to believe. The author clarifies the political confusion about 'apartheid' in South Africa and explains why liberation which is long overdue has been delayed, and shows how the Azanian struggle is socialist in content.

CHILDREN OF RESISTANCE

On Children, Repression and the Law in Apartheid South Africa

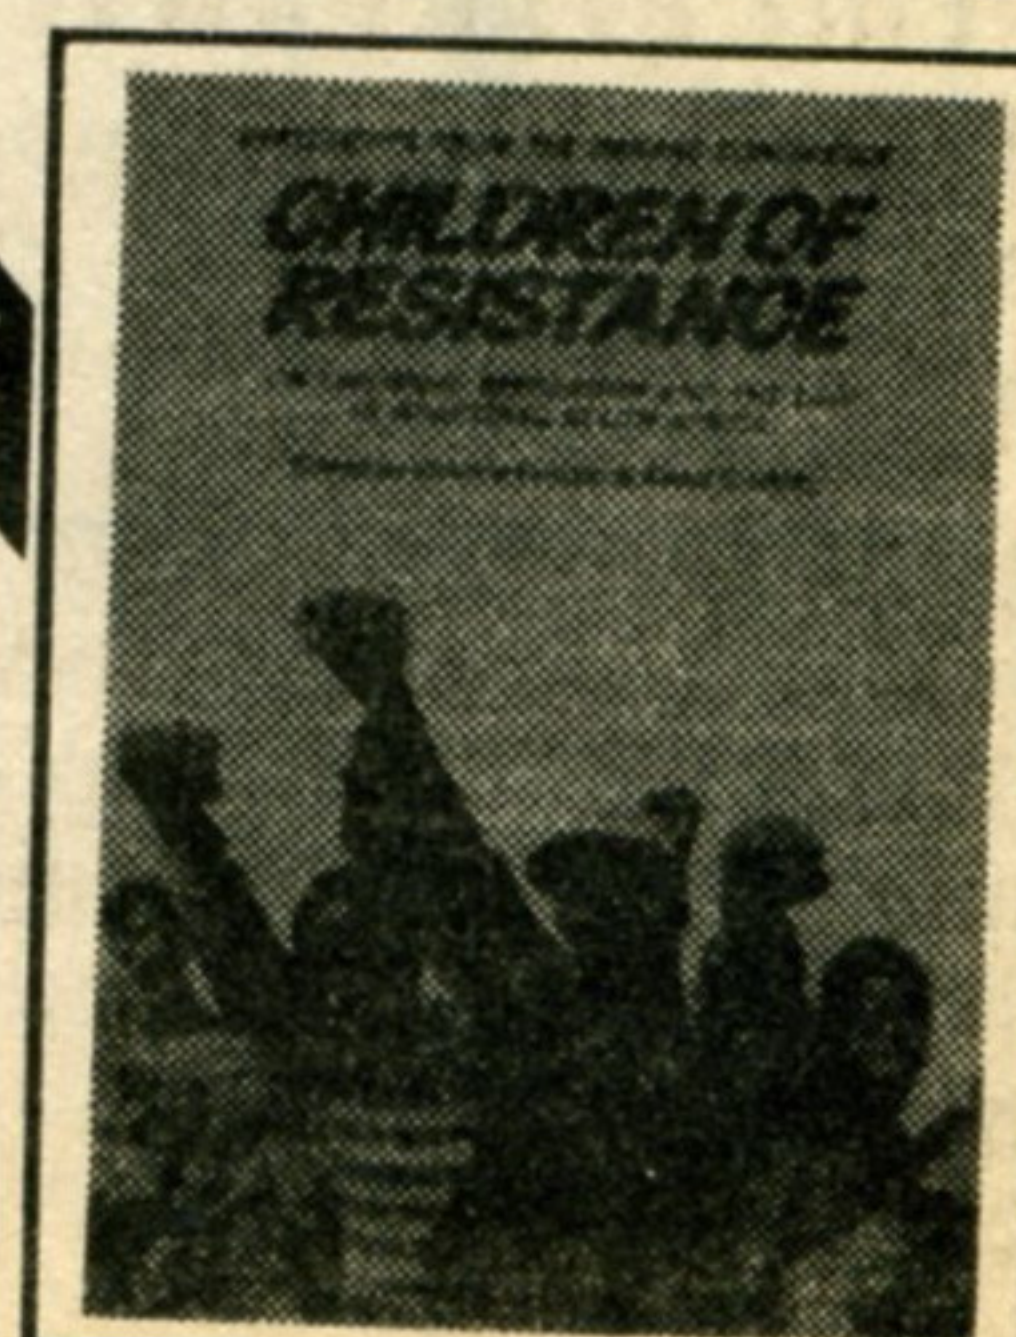

Victoria Brittain and Abdul S. Minty (eds.)

During the last decade the apartheid regime has unleashed the full force of its repression not only against adults but even against children. The veil of censorship which the regime keeps over its actions was pierced for a few days in Harare in September 1987. There, children gave testimony of their own experience of violence and torture, and lawyers, doctors, social workers, religious leaders and parents spoke of what they had themselves seen of the treatment of children.

ESCAPE FROM PRETORIA

Tim Jenkin

This is the exciting and inspiring story of how three political prisoners escaped from one of South Africa's top security prisons. Escape from Pretoria shows how patience, singlemindedness and meticulous attention to detail got the prisoners out of their cells and through 14 locked doors to freedom. It is also an account of how a white South African chose to throw in his lot with the oppressed black majority by joining the liberation struggle.

FORCED REMOVAL

The Division, Segregation and Control of the People of South Africa

Elaine Unterhalter

Forced Removal gives the facts behind the physical uprooting of millions of black people in South Africa. It describes the various forms that removals have taken during the different phases of apartheid and makes clear that forced removals are integral to the apartheid system. It concludes with an account of the current removal strategies of the regime and the increased resistance with which these strategies are being met.

THE SOUTH AFRICAN DISEASE Apartheid Health and Health Services

Cedric de Beer

This book shows that disease in South Africa is connected at every turn with the unequal distribution of the country's resources. Case studies reveal how South African society has created disease among its black population, and explain why the country has no national health service. It concludes that effective health care in South Africa can only become a reality through pressure from trade unions, community organizations and women's organizations.

VIOLENCE AND NONVIOLENCE IN SOUTH AFRICA

Jesus' Third Way

Walter Wink

In this provocative work, Walter Wink suggests that the injunctions of the 'Sermon on the Mount' which seem to counsel passivity in the face of injustice were actually deliberately mistranslated by Biblical scholars. Wink argues that Jesus actually offered a systematic and strategic third way of nonviolent resistance of particular relevance to today's political activist.

Bernard Magubane and Ibbo Mandaza

"The growing disagreements among the rulers, and the mounting resistance of the ruled, creates very favorable objective and subjective conditions for revolution in South Africa," stated Mr. N.M. ## THE CIRCUMCISION OF WOMEN

A Strategy for Eradication

Olayinka Koso-Thomas

African women have begun in recent years to research and campaign against the practice of female circumcision. Dr. Koso-Thomas shows that female circumcision is not confined to the Horn of Africa, or the Muslim areas of the Continent. Her study of the practice in Sierra Leone demonstrates its important role in the traditional initiation of females into both womanhood and society in parts of West Africa. She sets out proposals to end the crippling of women by this operation.

DAUGHTERS OF INDEPENDENCE

Gender, Caste and Class in India

Joanna Liddle and Rama Joshi

A wide-ranging exploration of the historical and cultural conditions which have contributed both to the general subordination of Indian women, and to the relative success of individual women who come from less impoverished urban families, in achieving a measure of personal freedom. The authors portray the lives and experiences of a group of urban women: their consciousness, their strategies of struggle, and the limits to the freedom they have achieved.

FEMINISM AND NATIONALISM IN THE THIRD WORLD

Kumari Jayawardena

This book reconstructs the little-known history of those political struggles women launched in Asia and the Middle East from the late 19th century onwards. The author challenges the view that feminism is a foreign ideology currently being imposed on Third World countries. She also brings back into the mainstream of history those women who played a part in the national liberation and revolutionary movements of their countries.

FROGS IN A WELL

Indian Women in Purdah

Patricia Jeffery

Frogs in a Well is a case study of women at one of India's most sacred Muslim shrines – that of the Sufi saint, Hazrat Nizamuddin Auliya. It is essentially a study of women living in strict purdah. Their situation is so different from that familiar to most non-Muslims today that it is difficult to grasp either the rationale for purdah or the social forces that perpetuate it. This book is an analysis of these forces, within the context of a delicate portrayal of the women's way of life.

THE LACEMAKERS OF NARSAPUR*Indian Housewives Produce for the World MarketMaria Mies*

This book offers a sensitive portrait of women in India and the conditions under which they work at home to produce luxury goods for the Western market. Maria Mies shows how this "cottage" industry is a permanent and ever more prevalent part of the process of primitive capital accumulation. By defining women as 'non-working housewives' a system has been created which makes possible rates of pay far below the levels necessary for the reproduction of the labour force.

A SEX REVOLUTION

Lois Waisbrooker

A dynamic speaker and writer, anarchist, spiritualist, feminist, and mentor of Emma Goldman, Lois Waisbrooker was arrested several times for advocating 'women's control over their own bodies.' In her 1893 novel, A Sex Revolution, women demand control of the world for fifty years to see whether it leads to the abolition of war. This work is a strikingly contemporary condemnation of the masculine concept of 'defense by the State' which has brought us all to the brink of annihilation.
